EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Strong brand love. Weak online conversion. Closing the gap is the prize.

Coffee Company Hada is a design-led specialty coffee boutique positioned between artisan craftsmanship and scalable premium retail. Customers recognise and appreciate the brand — yet conversion rates and repeat purchases on the Shopify storefront remain limited. This deck sets out a structured Direct-to-Consumer (D2C) growth strategy that converts cultural affinity into sustainable online revenue, while preserving the creative ethos that defines the brand.

Diagnose & Optimise

Audit market, customer journey & Shopify funnel. Lift conversion through product-page storytelling and friction removal.

Acquire High-Intent

Targeted digital marketing & social engagement to attract customers who already share the brand's cultural values.

Retain & Repeat

Subscriptions, bundles and loyalty programmes to lift customer lifetime value and stabilise recurring revenue.

Reinforce Culture

Expand cultural collaborations with galleries, bookshops and creative events to deepen community connection.

INDUSTRY OVERVIEW

The specialty coffee sector — premium, experience-led, design-aware.

DEFINING FORCES

► Quality & sourcing

single-origin beans, traceable supply, ethical certifications

► Ritual of consumption

pour-over, espresso craft, brewing equipment as lifestyle

► Cultural retail

coffee adjacent to art, music, literature, design

► Digital-native discovery

Instagram, editorial commerce, Shopify D2C

► Sustainability premium

compostable packaging, fair trade, climate-aware roasting

SPECIALTY VALUE CHAIN

Origin & farmer → traceable lots, micro-lots, direct trade

Roaster & brand → flavour profile, identity, storytelling

Channel → D2C e-comm · café · selective wholesale · events

Ritual & community → recurring purchase, loyalty, advocacy

"Coffee is no longer a commodity — it is a curated cultural ritual."

PORTER'S FIVE FORCES — a high-rivalry, low-switching arena.

SWOT ANALYSIS

Internal strength is real — *execution gaps are where revenue leaks.

CURRENT BUSINESS STRATEGY

A hybrid model — built for visibility, not yet for velocity.

Hada distributes through a multi-channel hybrid: Direct-to-Consumer e-commerce via Shopify, café partnerships, selective wholesale, and collaboration-based cultural events. The model maintains strong visibility within the specialty community — but conversion and repeat behaviour on the online channel remain limited, which is precisely where margin and lifetime value live.

MARKET OVERVIEW

MARKET STRUCTURE (QUALITATIVE)

Hada operates within the specialty food and beverage market, a segment characterized by premium products, quality sourcing, and experience-driven consumption. Consumer demand is fueled by the growing popularity of home brewing, lifestyle-led discovery through social media, and an increasing willingness to pay for authentic and traceable products. Competition is fragmented, with brands competing primarily through product quality, customer experience, innovation, and brand identity rather than price. The market also benefits from rising consumer awareness of sustainability and ethical sourcing practices. These factors create a dynamic environment where differentiation and strong brand positioning are essential for sustainable growth and long-term competitive advantage.

CUSTOMER ANALYSIS

Three personas, one bottleneck — love without conversion.

The Cultural Aesthete

25–38 · urban · design-aware

Follows the brand on Instagram, attends collaborations, gifts coffee on occasion but rarely converts to recurring D2C purchase. Buys the story, hesitates on basket.

The Home Brewer

28–50 · enthusiast · equipment-owner

Already drinks specialty daily; rotates roasters for variety. Highest LTV potential — but lowest brand loyalty without a structural retention mechanic.

The Gifting Discoverer

first-time buyer · acquired via café/event

Encounters the brand at a café, gallery or pop-up; buys once. The repeat-purchase gap lives here

CUSTOMER JOURNEY — WHERE THE LEAK OCCURS

STAGE 1

Awareness

Instagram, collaborations, café exposure — strong.

STAGE 2

Affinity

Brand love & cultural resonance — strong.

STAGE 3 · LEAK

Conversion

Shopify checkout — weak. Product page friction.

STAGE 4 · LEAK

Repeat

No subscription or loyalty hook — weak.

GOAL

Advocacy & LTV

Lock affinity into recurring revenue + word-of-mouth.

COMPETITOR ANALYSIS

Specialty rivals compete on conversion craft — Hada owns cultural depth.

COMPETITOR ARCHETYPE	POSITIONING	D2C STRENGTH	RETENTION MECHANIC	THREAT TO HADA
Global Specialty Roaster	Scaled craft. Minimalist aesthetic. Strong retail + D2C.	High — polished funnel, optimised PDP, strong content engine.	Subscription core; tiered loyalty & equipment ecosystem.	HIGH
Independent Micro-Roaster	Local boutique craft. Educator role.	Medium — strong product story, mixed checkout polish.	Subscription + tasting clubs. Brew-school upsell.	MEDIUM
Lifestyle / Design Brand	Design-forward. Editorial commerce.	High — Shopify-Plus level UX; story-rich PDPs	Editorial drops, collabs, limited editions.	HIGH
COFFEE COMPANY HADA	Coffee × art, music, literature. Cultural ritual.	Current weakness — affinity exists; funnel under-optimised.	To build — subscription + loyalty + bundles (the gap).	OUR FOCUS STRATEGIC GROUP MAP; Where Hada sits — and the unoccupied quadrant ahead.

PESTEL ANALYSIS

POLITICAL

- Import tariffs & coffee-origin trade policy
- Direct-trade frameworks (post-2024 EU deforestation rules)
- Hospitality & events regulation affecting collaborations
- Cross-border e-commerce compliance for D2C scaling

ECONOMIC

- Coffee commodity-price volatility (multi-decade highs)
- Premium discretionary spend under inflation pressure
- Rising paid-acquisition cost on Meta & Google
- Subscription economy growth — recurring-revenue tailwind

S

SOCIAL

- Home-brewing & coffee ritualisation accelerating
- Younger consumers buy identity, not products
- Cultural collaborations (galleries, bookshops) increasingly mainstream
- Community & belonging drive premium loyalty

TECHNOLOGICAL

- Shopify ecosystem (Recharge, Klaviyo, Smile.io) lowers retention-tooling cost
- AI-led PDP personalisation & copy generation
- Post-cookie analytics — first-party data becomes critical
- Short-form video formats dominating organic reach

ENVIRONMENTAL

- Climate-driven supply risk (Brazilian, Vietnamese yields)
- Consumer demand for compostable / refillable packaging
- Carbon-aware roasting & shipping increasingly visible
- Sustainability is no longer a cost — it is a brand premium

LEGAL

- Food-safety, labelling & origin-claim regulation
- Subscription-commerce cancellation disclosure laws
- GDPR / data-protection requirements on first-party data
- Trademark protection on cultural collaboration IP

MARKET OPPORTUNITIES AND GAPS

Three opportunity vectors — each addresses a specific revenue leak.

KEY STRATEGIC FINDINGS

Repeat purchases represent the most significant opportunity for increasing customer lifetime value (LTV), as retaining existing customers is often more cost-effective than acquiring new ones. Hada has already built a strong foundation of brand affinity through its quality products and unique customer experience, but much of this loyalty remains underutilized. At the same time, sustainability presents a powerful brand asset that can be leveraged more effectively to strengthen customer relationships and differentiation. By converting positive brand perception into repeat purchases through loyalty initiatives, personalized engagement, and sustainability-focused messaging, Hada can drive stronger retention, higher customer value, and sustainable long-term growth.

RECOMMENDATIONS

01

Market Entry — D2C-first, channel-disciplined.

Reframe Hada's channel mix to put Direct-to-Consumer e-commerce at the centre of the operating model, while preserving café and wholesale partnerships as discovery and brand-credibility assets — not as revenue-volume drivers.

ACTION A

Cafés & events become acquisition channels

Each café / collaboration ships with a QR-led "first online order" mechanic — physical exposure converts to a tracked digital relationship within 14 days.

ACTION B

Wholesale on Hada's terms

Curate boutique placements only (galleries, design hotels, independent bookshops). Volume is rejected if it dilutes brand. Wholesale is a marketing line, not a revenue line.

MEASURE OF SUCCESS

Shift channel revenue mix toward D2C-led growth · increased conversion rate · higher share of online repeat orders · café-to-online attribution becomes measurable.

Competitive Positioning — coffee × culture, on the page.

02

Translate Hada's cultural identity from collaborations and Instagram into the commerce surfaces — every product page, every email, every unboxing. Positioning is not what the brand says about itself; it is what survives the customer journey

PROPOSED POSITIONING STATEMENT

"For people who treat coffee as a cultural ritual — Hada is the specialty roaster that delivers craft beans alongside the art, music and literature that frame them."

THREE PILLARS TO EXPRESS IT

P1

Craft
Origin · roaster ·

P2

Culture

with an artist, author or playlist.

P3

Conscience
Compostable packaging

Customer Acquisition — high-intent, not high-volume.

03

Hada cannot — and should not — win on paid-volume terms against scaled specialty rivals. Acquisition must therefore be targeted, high-intent, and culturally aligned, with retention mechanics doing the heavy lifting on lifetime value.

Editorial content engine

Hada Notes, newsletter + journal on brewing, sourcing, collaborators.

Loyalty + subscription

Each retained customer drops effective CAC. Referral credit + tiered loyalty turn buyers into a acquisition channel.

Targeted Social & Search

Meta & Google budgets concentrated on look-alikes of the existing best buyers

Sustainable Packaging — where conscience becomes margin.

04

Packaging is the brand's most touched surface. For a culturally-positioned roaster, sustainability is no longer a cost-line — it is a positioning asset. The recommendation is to redesign packaging as a category of product, not as a wrapper.

WHY IT MATTERS COMMERCIALY

Sustainable packaging defends premium pricing, creates social-shareable unboxing, and aligns the brand with the values Hada's customers already hold — turning conscience into retention and margin.

IMPLEMENTATION PLAN

A 10-week sequence — diagnose, build, prove, scale.

WEEKS 1–2

Diagnose

- Funnel audit (PDP, cart, checkout)
- Customer interviews (8–10)
- Competitor teardown — D2C, retention
- Brand & copy assets review
- Baseline KPIs & instrumentation

WEEKS 3–4

Optimise Conversion

- Re-skin PDPs with editorial story
- Trust block + bundles above fold
- Express checkout, shipping clarity
- Klaviyo abandoned-cart flows
- A/B test gold-standard variants

WEEKS 4–6

Retention Build

- Subscription plan launched on Shopify
- Bundle SKUs (starter · curator · gift)
- Tiered loyalty programme go-live
- Referral mechanic instrumented
- "Hada Notes" newsletter cadence

WEEKS 6–8

Acquisition & Culture

- Targeted Meta & Google sprints
- First curated collaboration drop
- Café QR onboarding mechanic
- Influencer / creator seeding
- Sustainable packaging launch

WEEKS 9–10

Measure & Hand-Off

- KPI review vs. baseline
- Wholesale partnership pruning
- Subscription cohort analysis
- 90-day operating playbook
- Final recommendations & roadmap

GANTT CHART & KPI'S

NORTH-STAR & OPERATING KPIS

- ▶ Conversion rate · Shopify funnel

- ▶ Loyalty programme enrolment · share of

CONCLUSION AND Q&A

CULTURAL DEPTH × COMMERCIAL DISCIPLINE

By implementing the four strategic recommendations, Coffee Company Hada can strengthen its Direct-to-Consumer channel and convert strong brand engagement into sustainable online revenue growth. The brand's distinctive positioning — combining premium specialty coffee with design, culture and lifestyle — provides a strong foundation for deeper relationships with its audience.

Long-term success will depend on Hada's ability to optimise the digital customer journey, lift conversion, and encourage repeat purchase through subscriptions, targeted digital marketing, sustainable packaging and strategic collaborations.

IN ONE LINE

"Hada already owns the part of the market that takes years to build."

"The next 10 weeks build the part that takes months."
